MANHATTAN INSTITUTE'S TWENTIETH ANNUAL

Alexander
HAMILTON²⁰
AWARD DINNER

The Alexander Hamilton Award was instituted to celebrate and honor those individuals who have made exceptional contributions to the nation's civic and intellectual life. We chose to name the award after Hamilton because he was a man of ideas and action. As aide-de-camp to Washington during the Revolution, the primary author of the Federalist Papers, and the nation's first Treasury secretary, Hamilton, perhaps more than anyone, set the course for America's bright future and prosperity over the next two centuries. Our honorees this year have each made Hamiltonian contributions to America, and the Manhattan Institute is privileged to honor them this evening.
